Community Reuse Network Ireland (CRNI)

Foreword

Community Reuse Network Ireland (CRNI) is the all-island body for community repair, reuse and recycling organisations. CRNI's vision is to create an Ireland where the word 'waste' does not exist and where the entire community benefits from the social, environmental and economic value of reusable resources.

CRNI was founded in 2010 with the aim of promoting community based, sustainable waste management as a practical and effective way of tackling Ireland's growing waste problem. We achieve this, and work toward our vision, by supporting our members to grow and thrive and by influencing policy and practice. Full members include social enterprises, charities and community organisations throughout Ireland. Affiliate members include those from the wider repair, reuse, recycling and waste prevention sector¹. CRNI, like many of its members, is driven by the triple bottom line of: environmental, social and financial gain.

We deliver environmental gain by supporting our members to optimise the use of valuable resources, developing best practice, influencing policy, promoting repair, reuse and recycling and knowledge sharing. In 2016, our members reused 32,600 tonnes of resources and recycled 68,700 tonnes². We develop best practice by participating in major research projects which not only support the capacity development of our members but also influence national and EU policy development. We share knowledge through our newsletter, information events and our biennial conference. We engage with multiple stakeholders including community organisations, policy makers, funders and businesses at local, national and international level levels to communicate the benefits of community repair, reuse and recycling and effect change.

We deliver social gain by supporting our members to create employment and training opportunities, influencing policy, and promoting our members' work in local communities throughout Ireland. Our members create employment and provide training positions for people distant from the job market, often in areas of disadvantage. In 2016 our members employed almost 1,000 people, provided training positions for over 500 people and supported over 7,600 volunteer opportunities³.

We deliver financial gain by strengthening our members' capacity, maximise the economic value of reusable resources and create local sustainable employment. In 2016, our members generated approx. €100 million revenue through reuse and recycling⁴. The estimated value of our members employing people directly and providing high quality training opportunities for people from disadvantaged communities or the long term unemployed is €50 million⁵.

CRNI's actions, decisions and the way it organises itself are underpinned by the guiding values and principles of: equality, respect, collaboration and credibility. We promote equality by supporting members to employ and train people who are distant from the job market. We also promote equality by making resources accessible to a wide range of communities across Ireland. We respect people, communities and the environment. We collaborate with a range of stakeholders including local, regional, national and EU agencies, funders, community & voluntary groups, businesses, representative bodies and consumers. We constantly strive to be a credible organisation with committed members, evidence based practice and rigorous analysis.

CRNI is a dynamic evolving network. By working together with our members and acting as one voice we have a greater impact than acting alone. CRNI supports members to strengthen their social enterprises and play an active a role in mainstreaming the Community Resources Sector.

The network receives core funding support from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) through the National Waste Prevention Programme as well as membership contributions.

This Strategic Plan (2019 – 2022) was developed in consultation with CRNI Members and a range of other stakeholders. It outlines how CRNI will support the growth of our members, drive the mainstreaming of the Community Resource Sector and operate as an efficient and effective charity. This Strategic Plan will be reviewed annually and the findings widely disseminated. Through the implementation of this Strategic Plan CRNI will play a leadership role in strengthening and mainstreaming the Community Resources Sector which will lead to a more sustainable and inclusive Ireland.

Circular Economy

A linear economy is built on the principles of take, make and waste. This is not sustainable and alternatives need to be found. In a circular economy growth is separated from the use of scarce resources through production models based on long life products that can be repaired, renewed, upgraded or refurbished.

Circular Economies:

- ✓ Keep the added value in products for as long as possible and aim to eliminate waste.
- ✓ Keep resources within the economy when a product has reached the end of its life, so that they can be productively used again and again and create further value.

- ✓ Develop an all-encompassing risk register, carry out annual Risk Assessment and put Risk Management Programme in place.
- ✓ Identify 3 new sources of funding and double our funding base
